

Great news! Starting September 28th Canadian Black Book's online services will be updated every Monday to bring you our most current values.

What's changing on September 28th?

Our online publishing cycle for used vehicles will now happen every Monday morning with one exception, our motorcycle guide will remain monthly.

Which publications stay the same?

For the time being, all new car related information, specifically residual value guides, will remain on a monthly update frequency.

Are you changing all values every week?

No, as before, vehicles that have changed in the marketplace will change in our guide.

I am a data file or XML webservice subscriber, what changes for me?

At this point, this change effects only our online subscribers and we are readying our XML Version 3.0 to support weekly updates.

What if I don't want the latest values?

Contact us and your online account can be converted back to the less frequently updated version.

What will it cost to receive weekly updates?

If you are an online subscriber you will receive this improved service at no additional charge, compared to our current online subscription prices.

Are books going to be published weekly too?

No, all books will keep the same frequency that they have before this change.
